KOREAN TRADITIONAL ALCOHOL

Traditionally, Korean rice brews fall under the categories of chungju, takju, and soju. All three are derived from the same brewing process: Rice is fermented with nuruk, a wheat cake fermentation starter that lends traditional brews their characteristic funk.

Chungju	Bottle	Glass (50ml)
세종대왕 어주 Sejong the Great Eo Joo (500ml / 15.0%) ① Sejong the Great Eo Joo is brewed in Chojung, the city famous for the purest water in Korea as well as where the king Sejong's favourite place for his summer vacations. Based on the ancient recipe created by the royal physician, it is fermented over 90 days for its unique complexity of sweetness and refreshing notes.	990
일엽편주 Ell Yeop Pyun Joo (375ml / 15.0%) ② Named after a phrase of a poem written by a famous scholar from Joseon Dynasty, Nong-Am Lee Hyun Bo, this historical chungju has inherited his legacy brewed by his family for centuries. The subtle rice notes with fruity flavours and sweetness are well balanced by acidity.	990
오메기 맑은술 Omegi Malgunsool (500ml / 16.0%) ③ Fermented with traditional omegi rice cake made with foxtail millet, and purified water from Jeju Island, Omegi Malgunsool is a medicinal liquor that gives a natural fruit scent, with hints of sweetness and a clean finish.	950	148
능이주 Neung-i-ju (375ml / 13.0%) ④ Neung-i-ju is a medicinal liquor made with Neung-i, mushrooms typically found in the wild and prized for its musky fragrance and earthy flavour.	550	98
한산소곡주(우희열 명인) Hansan Sogokju (360ml / 18.0%) ⑤ Made from clean underground water and locally produced agricultural ingredients, Hansan Sogokju contains sweetness from glutinous rice, spiciness of ginger, together with light nuance of camomile and malted grain flavour.	420
왕주 Wang-ju (375ml / 13.0%) ⑥ A royal liquor from the Joseon Dynasty, Wang-ju is brewed using bedrock water, wild chrysanthemum, goji berries and pine needles, resulting in an herbal scent with sweetness and mild acidity.	420

KOREAN TRADITIONAL ALCOHOL

Takju	Bottle	Glass (50ml)
복순도가 막걸리 Boksoondoga Makgeolli (935ml / 6.0%) ㉗ The champagne of makegeolli, Boksoondoga is lively with a delicate effervescence. The natural carbonation is produced out of nuruk fermentation, which provides a refreshing sensation similar to that of champagne, along with rich and mild tastes, and a clean finish.	780
풍정사계 추 Pungjeong Sagye "Chu" (500ml / 12.0%) ㉙ "Sagye" (four seasons) is derived from the natural surroundings of Pungjeong, where the brewery is located, and dedicated to four different sool inspired by each season. The takju brewed in traditional way of fermenting hundred days in the pottery, "Chu" (Autumn) displays floral aroma with unique notes from the balance of bitterness and sweetness.	890
 Soju
대장부 Dae-Jang-Bu (375ml / 25.0%) The premium soju Dae-Jang-Bu 25 (25%) is distilled from 100% rice, carefully raised in Korea and milled 24%. It is manufactured with craftsman to achieve full bodied flavour with mildest taste.	490	98
일엽편주 소주 EIl Yeop Pyun Joo Soju (375ml / 38.0%) Made in the historic brewery inheriting Nong-Am Lee Hyun Bo, this premium soju instantly spreads its unique bitter-sweetness with a sip. The soft and sweet flavour created by atmospheric distillation using traditional yeast will be stronger and deeper over time.	1200
