

List of winemakers

Loire

Philippe Delmée

Our only winemaker from northern France. Not because we don't love colder wines, but we just fell in love the warm and spicy southern French wines. But we have to be excused from straying off, we couldn't help ourselves. Philippe's wines have personality and are characteristic, whether it be his effervescent cabernet franc, his mineral grolleau or his soft soft chenin blanc.

Côtes du Rhône

Domaine Faucon Doré

www.faucon.dore.free.fr

This family domaine in the northern part of southern Rhône makes both traditional, spicy Rhône wines and more soft and fruity wines. A good example of how tradition and modern style can meet elegantly.

Pascal Chalon

With his small 10 hectares and basement in his grandmother's old garage, Pascal makes his three amazing wines. Syrah, Grenache, Mourvedre and Carignan make up the good Rhône juice with spices and wonderful fruit. He also makes a white Rhône, which is phenominally spicy and creamy.

Clos de Caveau

www.closdecaveau.com

This fine Vacqueyras has its roots in fields that are higher than the traditional wines of the village. Surrounded by forests and with a rich biodiversity, the special microclimate gives some very aromatic wines with juice and edge.

Provence

Chateau Sulauze

www.domainedesulauze.com

Karina and Guillaume Lefèvre have created a biodynamic playground in Coteaux Aix-en-Provence. They started ripping out most of the industrial vines to make space for animals and barley- both for the animals and for making delicious beer. The wines that remains are small plots of old grenache, syrah, vermentino and arguably the cutest little hill plot of cinsault next to an old chapel. All the wines have an energy and lightness to them that reflects Karina and Guillaume.

Languedoc

Reserve d'O

www.lareservedo.fr

Fruity finesse from Terrasses du Larzac. Forest berries, cliffs, rebel movements and moon calendars are all important ingredients in these elegant and savory wines.

Alain Chabanon

www.alainchabanon.fr

Alain's wines are elegant and slender. He is recognized in France for his great work on purity and fruit in the Southern French grapes. Whether the wine is stored on concrete eggs or wood barrels there is a balance to Alain's fingerprints.

Benjamin Thaillandier

www.vigneronminervoises.com

Youthful drinkability! Benjamin cultivates traditional Southern French grapes on his 7 hectares. He is a new talent on the way with both juice and power. With the ambition to make wines to drink. Juicy and inviting.

Hegarty Chamans

www.hegartychamans.com

An English rich man, a dedicated Burgundian wine maker and isolated terroir in the mouth of Montaigne Noir. Biodynamic balance between soil, animals, wine and humans gives deep spicy wines that challenge both nose and mind.

Le Mas de mon Père

www.lemasdemonpere.chez-alice.fr

Frederic is crazy. And he makes crazy wines. If wines can have ADHD, Frederic's must be diagnosed. Malepère's only ecologist, who drives on purpose and energy.

Domaine Loupia

The couple Pons make beautiful craftsmanship. The domain has been ecological since 1974, where Nathalie's father changed it. Today, she and her husband make creamy dark wines, which have an immediateness and drinkability to them, which stems from proficient craftsmanship and decency in the cellar.

Chateau Marco

Marc Leseney has no website, but the phone number is on the bottle so you can just call him if you have questions. Marc cuts a little back on the number of cows and slightly up the number of vines every year. He is close to having a hectare. We are happy about that. Because that means we have been allowed to buy something from him. Bold oxidized chenin and a crisp and delicious Blanquette de Limoux.

La Jument Rousse

www.la-jument-rousse.fr

Hand-held and characteristic Corbières. Sandrine has been allowed to work with her horse and her creative mind on Eloi's ancient fields around Lagrasse. And from that comes wine that bursts of life and joy.

Clos de l'Anhel

www.anhel.fr

Sophie Guiraudon grows wine at her 9 hectares in central Corbières. Her wines are characterized by sunshine and dry climate and have roots in the traditional Corbières, with powerful tanins, dark berries and pepper. But her way of working in the cellar gives a lighter and more fruity touch. A great example of how tradition and new thinking can meet in beautiful interactions.

Domaine l'Arbousier

Eric Le Ho makes this one wine: Gaussan. With abundant amounts of character and own will- we are talking about the wine now. Eric has 3 hectares in Corbières with old Carignan and Cinsault and younger Grenache and Mourvedre. In extreme drought and intense sun the vines stand next to each other while Eric is working with grafting and trying to create as much biodiversity as possible.

Domaine Grand Guilhem

www.grandguilhem.com

Gilles and Sèverine Contrepois make their elegant Fitou wines of 12.7 hectares, where they cultivate Grenache, Carignan, Syrah, Muscat and Maccabeu. The latitude of the fields and Gilles's careful work in the cellar gives the wines a nice acidity and complex aftertaste.

Chateau Pech Redon

www.pech-redon.com

In the heart of La Clape lies the beautiful Pech Redon surrounded by nature reserves. The area's very special climate with Mediterranean sea air and a wealth of plant and animal life gives the wines their very own character with seaweed and wild herbs in the palate.

Domaine St. Marie des Pins

www.domaine-sainte-marie.com

Delectable biodynamic drops from Marie and Henri Gayzard's 28-hectare domain a little south of Carcassonne. Their fields are surrounded by forests, olive groves and almond trees. The wines are incredibly drinkable with good fruit acid, soft tones and a delicate almond edge.

Jean-Claude Beirieu

www.jeanclaude.beirieu.free.fr.

South of the city of Limoux Beirieu cultivates 5 hectares with Mauzac, Chardonnay, Merlot and Cabernet Sauvignon. He makes sparkling Blanquette-type wines with sweetness and character. He also makes some red and white wines, each with their own soft soulfulness. Jean-Claude is particularly proud of his mutant size earthworms that make the soil airy so the vines can breathe.

Zéligé Caravent

www.zelige-caravent.com

Luc and Marie decided to take over Luc's grandparents vineyard in the village of Corconne between Montpellier and Nimes. And we are happy about it. With Luc's zealously and Marie's ferocity they make savory, delicious and charming wines with edge and cream.

Roussillon

Marc Barriot

Marc struggled with his grapes in the southern most part of France, near Maury, for a long time. Then his wife Caroline told him to cut the crap and make wine the way he wanted to and not the way he thought others wanted him to. And here is the proof that you can taste the philosophy of the winemaker in the wine. Velvet, crispy, juicy and ferocious wines with the definition of the tasty barn.

Danjou-Banessy

In the borderland between France and Spain in Côtes Catalanes the brothers Benoit og Sebasti en make truly beautiful and pure wines. Guided by ancient knowledge and ancestral craft the brothers capture the essence of the land through their grapes. Syrah and grenache with muscles but tenderness and maccabeo, muscat and carignan gris that melts on the tongue and lingers as a good compliment.

In addition to our own imports, we sell exciting bio wines from Rosforth and Rosforth (www.rosforth.dk), Petillant (www.petillant.dk), Melin Vin (www.melinvin.dk), Our Market (www.voresmarked.dk) and Oinofilia (www.oinofilia.com). We will have changing wines from these skilled wine traders, depending on the mood, so come have a look and see what we think is exciting at the moment
