cult wines – rare gems, back vintage, eccentric winemakers

what makes a wine cult? is it producers that fly under the radar, or winemakers that change the style of a region, or buck the trend? from the barolo boys (and girl!), to biodynamic pioneers or small quantity garagistes, these are a collection of the wines that are rare and hard to find picked out by the balthazar sommeliers

'for the few and the favoured'

since luciano sandrone's first superb vintage in 1978 his wines have become even better and more sort after, gaining cultlike status. embracing traditional practices and modern techniques he has created one of the great estates in the world. his flagship barolo from the famed cannubi boschis cru (now named aleste for his grandchildren) continues to get better even though his 1990 vintage received a perfect score from robert parker. meanwhile the estate gained organic certification in the vineyards and continued to grow to 27 hectares. joined in the 90's by his brother, more lately by his daughter and increasingly his grandchildren the future looks bright for the estate, despite luciano suddenly passing away in 2023. the museum program 'sibi et paucis' (for the few and the favoured) continues luciano's dream of only releasing the wines when they are ready with the aleste now being released 10 years after vintage. these are spectacular wines worth searching out.
