Riesling and Friends

Few beverages in the world can hold the esteem that the supremely aromatic Riesling has globally, and at all the spectrum's ends – in Germany and Austria, the wines that boast a purity and sweetness carried by a lick of structural acid and texture find themselves the most prized, where few Australian wine drinkers have grown without knowing the lazer-dry styles of the Clare.

- 2018 Dom Valentine Riesling, Yarra Valley VIC 65
Undoubtably one of the best Australian winemakers you've never heard of, Victoria's Dom Valentine comes with a heavy hitting resume and Riesling is definitely a strong suit – well worth a lash.

If You Like Sauvignon Blanc

The Australian (and NZ) White Wine Industry's last 20 or so years have been built on the back of Sauvignon Blanc. As an entry into white wine, sure, Savvy B is a fine starting point; but now you're here, why not see what else is around?

Royalty Of Jura: Anne Et Jean-Francois Ganevat

To call these wines iconic would be an understatement. The Jura Region is idiosyncratic, and the wine industry there tiny, but their quality and influence sends ripples throughout the world. France, Etc

Chardonnay's spiritual home is arguably Chablis and the Côtes De Beaune in central France. Steeped in history and home to some of the finest winemakers in the world, there is little question as to why these wines are amongst the most prized Whites in existence. As you can probably tell, we don't mind a Burgundy; if you want any further help deciphering the next two pages, just reach out.

Not Quite Red

Rosé wine has been the quiet achiever in the wine world for a great many years. From the dry, herbaceous provincial styles to the more fruit driven New World expressions, the 'pink drink' has and will always have its place in the world's restaurants and bars.

2015 Pibarnon Mourvedre Rosé, Bandol FR 122

Few regions in the world, if any, rival Bandol in the south of France for production of Rosé wine. Typically produced from Mourvedre, these are the benchmark worldwide for dry, herbaceous Rosés.

Pinot Noir and Friends

As every Queen has her King, so Chardonnay has Pinot Noir. A wine that is as versatile as the places that make it, Pinot may be a trick to grow, but if handled correctly rewards drinkers with a depth and complexity few wines can match.

Legendary Producer: Jean Francois Ganevat

If you said that Jean Francois Ganevat was the most famous living winemaker of the Jura, very few would argue. It's hard to dispute the legendary status of this guy, who makes a dizzying amount of different cuvees, all to exacting standards of Biodynamics, and what we could easily call 'Natural' Winemaking. – Ganevat Wines are as rare as unicorn's tears, and as delicious as you'd expect those tears to be. Act quickly.

From Rhone to Jumilla, And Those they Inspired

The Mediterranean basin, from Spain's east coast and across the south of France, is arguably Europe's hotbed for forward thinking winemakers – sustainable vineyard practices are the norm, and medium bodied, complex and savoury reds are like the region's mother's milk.

Vodka 30 mL/60 mL

Vodka is a pretty relaxed category of spirit. Made from anything that contains starch and distilled in pretty much any way; as long as you can blast it up to high proof relatively quickly, you can produce vodka. High quality vodka, on the other hand, takes a little more craftsmanship.

Tequila/Mezcal

Tequila and Mezcal are both a part of one big, happy family – made in Mexico from members of the Agave family, that's pretty much where the similarities end. Tequila, from the Blue Weber Agave, speaks of sweetness and soft fruit, whereas Mezcal, made from any member of the Agave family, presents mineral, faint smoke and earth.
