Riesling and Friends

Few beverages in the world can hold the esteem that the supremely aromatic Riesling has globally, and at all the spectrum's ends – in Germany and Austria, the wines that boast a purity and sweetness carried by a lick of structural acid and texture find themselves the most prized, where few Australian wine drinkers have grown without knowing the lazer-dry styles of the Clare.

- 2019 Dom Valentine Riesling, Yarra Valley VIC 65
Undoubtably one of the best Australian winemakers you've never heard of, Victoria's Dom Valentine comes with a heavy hitting resume and Riesling is definitely a strong suit – well worth a lash.
- 2018 Le Petit Vanguard Riesling, Clare Valley SA 65
- 2018 Frankland Estate 'Poison Hill' Riesling, Frankland River WA 85

If You Like Sauvignon Blanc

The Australian (and NZ) White Wine Industry's last 20 or so years have been built on the back of Sauvignon Blanc. As an entry into white wine, sure, Savvy B is a fine starting point; but now you're here, why not see what else is around?

- 2019 Corymbia Chenin Blanc, Swan Valley WA 65
- 2017 Edi Simic 'Giacato' Pinot Grigio, Goriška Brda SLV 60
- 2019 The Pass Sauvignon Blanc, Marlborough NZ 62

For Lovers of Texture

The ways that white wine develops texture are myriad: oak, time spent on lees, fermentation techniques or indeed the varietal character from each grape will contribute to a broad mouth-feel and a long, satisfying finish.

- 2020 Hughes + Hughes Pinot Gris, MR TAS 68
- 2019 Tourlaudiere 'Bohale' Muscadet-Sur-Lie, Loire Valley FR 88
- 2013 Le Rocher Des Violettes 'La Negrette' Chenin Blanc, Loire Valley FR 95

Royalty Of Jura: Anne Et Jean-Francois Ganevat

To call these wines iconic would be an understatement. The Jura Region is idiosyncratic, and the wine industry there tiny, but their quality and influence sends ripples throughout the world. Anne et Jean-Francois Ganevat are true leaders in the region with a dizzying array of cuvees, and their wines, an unwavering delight.

The Mediterranean Basin

(And Inspired By)

The Mediterranean basin of southern Europe carries perfect conditions for textural whites; long summers, mild winters, fertile soils and a gentle oceanic influence – the following wines, mostly indigenous varieties, are fantastic examples of a modern push for showcasing this wonderful potential.

- 2017 Celler Comunica 'La Pua' Garnacha Blanca,

France, Etc

Chardonnay's spiritual home is arguably Chablis and the Côtes De Beaune in central France. Steeped in history and home to some of the finest winemakers in the world, there is little question as to why these wines are amongst the most prized Whites in existence. As you can probably tell, we don't mind a Burgundy; if you want any further help deciphering the next two pages, just reach out.

Legendary Producer: Jean Francois Ganevat

If you said that Jean Francois Ganevat was the most famous living winemaker of the Jura, very few would argue. It's hard to dispute the legendary status of this guy, who makes a dizzying amount of different cuvees, all to exacting standards of Biodynamics, and what we could easily call 'Natural' Winemaking. – Ganevat Wines are as rare as unicorn's tears, and as delicious as you'd expect those tears to be. Act quickly.

From Rhone to Jumilla, And Those they Inspired

The Mediterranean basin, from Spain's east coast and across the south of France, is arguably Europe's hotbed for forward thinking winemakers – sustainable vineyard practices are the norm, and medium bodied, complex and savoury reds are like the region's mother's milk.

Vodka 30 mL/60 mL

Vodka is a pretty relaxed category of spirit. Made from anything that contains starch and distilled in pretty much any way; as long as you can blast it up to high proof relatively quickly, you can produce vodka. High quality vodka, on the other hand, takes a little more craftsmanship.

Tequila/Mezcal

Tequila and Mezcal are both a part of one big, happy family – made in Mexico from members of the Agave family, that's pretty much where the similarities end. Tequila, from the Blue Weber Agave, speaks of sweetness and soft fruit, whereas Mezcal, made from any member of the Agave family, presents mineral, faint smoke and earth.
